Challenge

Spirit of '91

1990-1991 looks as if it is going to be a year of challenges. Every member of the Marian community will face challenges throughout the year, challenges that will include the search for academic excellence as well as the usual difficulties with friends, families, and teachers.

1990-1991, however, poses some special hurdles for our Marian community. Student enrollment, which has made something of a turn around in the last few years, is still below what we'd like it to be, and the available pool of students is smaller than ever. In addition, our athletic teams have posted some poor records in the past few years, with the result that school spirit has been sagging. This is the year that we're challenged to change all that — and more.

In order to meet those challenges, every member of the Marian community will be called upon to maintain a positive attitude as we strive together towards our individual and community goals. We will need to help each other see that there are no obstacles that cannot be turned into opportunities.

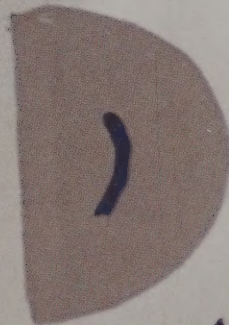

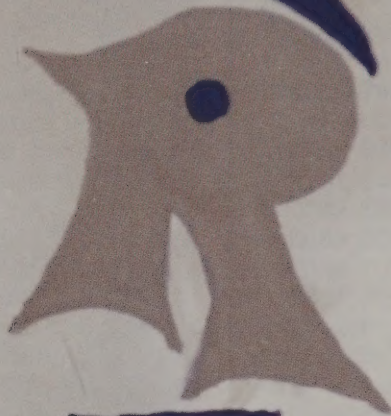

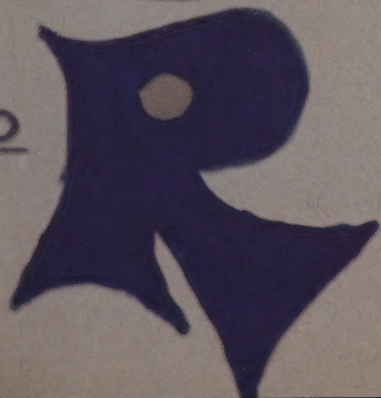

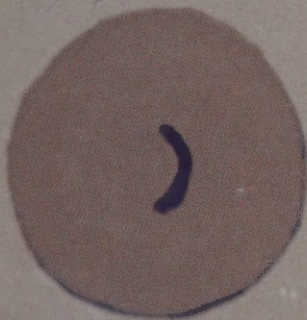

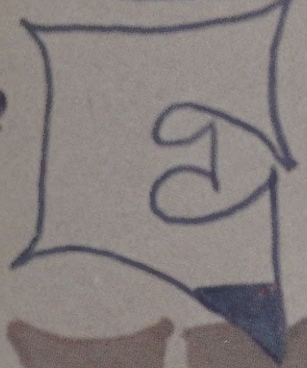

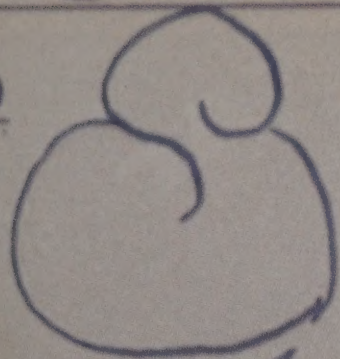

Our efforts this year will once again bring back the pride of Marian High School. We will live up to the reputation of excellence in academics and athletics that others in the past have established. This year will mark the return to glory for MHS!

The First Hurdle

Once again Marian has invited a new class into its community. The class of '94 started strongly, "Yet in no way did they compare to the class of '91 when we were freshman," said senior Mike Crothers. Although their potential has been recognized by many, they have much to learn throughout the years about respect, school spirit, and how to have fun without Mommy and Daddy! In a few years the Marian community will be expecting great success from this class. It remains to be seen whether this class can pull themselves together and eventually make it to be ALMIGHTY SENIORS! So, with this in mind, the best thing to do is to wish them good luck and hope they turn out to be as great as the SENIOR CLASS OF '91.

Homecoming

Spirit Of '91

Friday September 21, 1990 marked the end of a very busy and spirited week at Marian. Throughout the week, students showed their spirit by dressing in the day's particular theme. The week began with "Class Color Day," and students showed pride in their class, as well as their school, by dressing in the class's designated color. A barrage of hockey sticks, shoulder pads, and basketball jerseys marked Tuesday as "Sports Day." Friendship often means like personalities, which was expressed on Wednesday's "Twins Day." The famed blue and silver blazed in the halls as students painted their faces to show their pride on Thursday's "School Color Day." For the first time in many years, Friday was designated as "Dress-Up Day." Students, much to their chagrin, came dressed in nice clothing.

Homecoming week led up to an evening full of excitement. As the Knights stormed the field, the crowd cheered wildly. With the spirit of Homecoming in the air, a sense of school pride welled up in the players and the fans alike. With the support of the crowd at their backs, the Knights opened the game with a bone-breaking drive that ended with Brian Nix's 56 yard touchdown run. From that point on, things seemed to deteriorate on the field, but spirits remained high as the Knights trailed 14-6 at the half.

As the teams left the field, the crowd's emotion showed as the floats circled the track. With the arrival of the Homecoming court, Father Daryl "took this opportunity" to announce that Jill Allsop, who was escorted by Ron Garcia, would be this year's Homecoming Queen. After the half-time festivities, both teams stormed through the densely-building fog onto the field for the second half. Although the Knights controlled the seventh-ranked Bishop Luers for the majority of the first half, Luers took over in the second half, and the gap was opened.

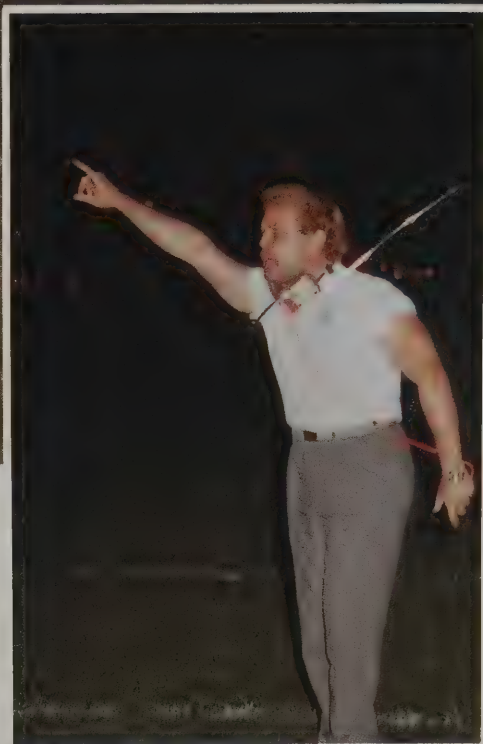

As the defender hangs on for his life, Brian Kinzie struggles for the extra yardage.

Spirit

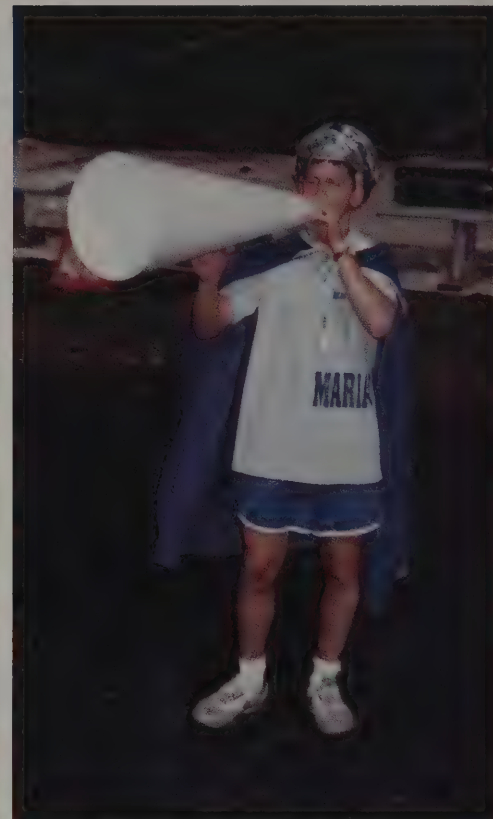

... return to glory!

The 1990-91 school year started off with a renewed spirit, described as the "Return to Glory." The returning students, along with parents, new teachers, and alumni have helped to bring back spirit. The students' participation in Homecoming Week has shown their tremendous spirit. Vocal spirit is always heard at sporting events from parents and especially from cheer-leading co-moderators, Mrs. Snia-decki and Mrs. Diroll. New teachers that have graduated from Marian have helped to bring the old Knight Spirit back to life. The renewed "Return to Glory" is bound to stay at Marian for many years to come.

New Teachers

... New Faces At Marian

As you get your schedule on Orientation Day, you notice the names of several unfamiliar teachers. You ask your friends who they are, but they don't know either. You realize, with rising horror, it's a new teacher! Who knows what they'll demand? Will their classes be all notes and lectures?

This year there are nineteen new teachers. Of these, five are Marian alumni. Michael Sullivan, Mary Kay Dance, Patrick Tafelski, Leanne

Grzeskowiak, and Jerome Caldron at one time all sat in the very same desks that their students now occupy!

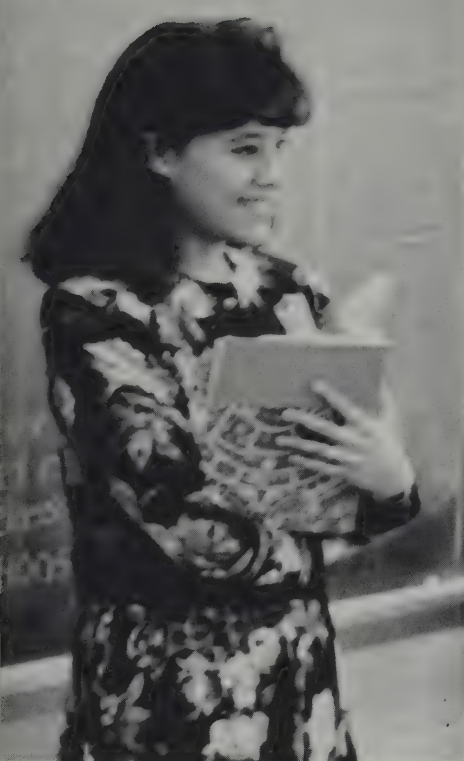

In addition, there are new faces in nearly every department. The English, Foreign Language, Theology, Science, Health and Phys. Ed, and Fine Arts Departments all have teachers who are new to Marian, and there is even a new course called Learning Strategies taught by Brian Burkart.

All of us want to be like Mrs. Hatfield, but only Mrs. Schultz can.

Although Mrs. Milligan looks innocent, her mischievous smile lets us know she's up to something.

What do you hope to accomplish with the students at Marian?

"I hope to instill a spirit of respect toward me as a person, and as a teacher, and respect towards each other." Mrs. Keller

"I hope that the students I teach will develop an appreciation for and love of God's Word in sacred Scripture." Sr. Felicity

"I want them to realize what life and the world are really about." Mrs. Schultz

What is the most annoying thing your students do while you teach?

TALK! If you want more details on this, talk to Colleen Andrews and Cindy Broering." Mr. Land

What is the best remedy for waking up students who fall asleep?

"In the band room there is always a set of cymbals handy." Mr. Liwosz

"Covering them from head to toe with toilet paper and having the class wake them up." Mrs. Milligan

What do you think is going to be your biggest challenge teaching at Marian?

"My biggest challenge is to be worthy of the excellent students I have in my class." Rev. Smith

How is Marian different from other schools where you have taught?

"The big difference I see is the excellent attendance record." Mr. Teegarden

How has Marian changed over the years?

Jerome Calderone

Michael Sullivan

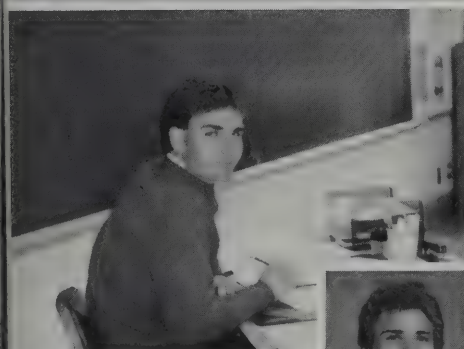

"The classes are no longer segregated by gender nor are the classes tracked. The wool uniforms for girls are gone. The boys no longer wear sport coats and ties everyday." — Mrs. Dance

"I think only the faces have changed. There is still a strong sense of community and family that I enjoyed as a student." — Mr. Tafelski

"Overall, I have not seen drastic changes. Obviously, much of the staff is new, but I feel the spirit of the school is the same." — Miss Grzeskowiak

"Enrollment. When I was at Marian I think the enrollment was close to 650." — Mr. Sullivan

Senior Spirit

... RULES!

The senior class demonstrated its strength, unity, and spirit in a plethora of ways throughout the year, whether it was leading the crowd at athletic events, calendar sales, or anything else, no matter what the circumstances, throughout the year. Furthermore, the senior class of '91 started a new trend in that they actually attended school sponsored activities, such as the after game dances, SADD lock-in, and winter and spring carnivals. The senior attendance at these events was incomparable to the years before. These examples will hopefully carry on to future classes, so that the enormous pride that was once a part of Marian tradition will return.

On Senior Night, Meg Bornheimer and Laura Woodka sport the famous Catholics vs. Catholics T-shirts.

With the blue and silver at hand, Todd Bundrant, Alex Knopick, and Andy Hobik cheer on their team.

Academics

"I would like to take this opportunity to . . ."

— Father Daryl

While the rest of us count the days of our school year from August to May, some members of our staff think of the buildings at 1311 South Logan Street as "home away from home" for many more days of the year. In addition to the Principal, and Dean of Students, those who work year-round include the counseling staff, the Director of Public Relations and the support staff in all the offices. Think of them next June when you're getting up at eleven o'clock to sun yourself in the backyard.

Chemistry

The masses walk in at 8:05, half awake, half still sleeping. The always frigid Chemistry room of Mrs. Crawford wakes everybody up very quickly. All the students hurry to their labs to get their aprons and goggles. Rachel Mickelson acts like a superhero, Aluminum Woman, while Jim Schmeideler and Steve Schwindaman battle for Mrs. Crawford's attention. The room has turned into a madhouse, with dropping of beakers by Brian Nix, and laughter from the class because of Ryan Sisti's smart remarks. This is followed by a small explosion of magnesium and beakers overflowing. Unaffected by this, Brent Wilhelm and Stacey Portolese are at their lab talking about April Thomas. The students in the class try to keep it from drawing into an eternity.

Calculus

Marianne Hansen is checking the lunch menu to discover that chili salad is for lunch. Mr. Krucina and Maureen Dugan argue where you can find the best chili. Geoff Ward and John Palmer are once again trying to recruit Mary Rakowski for cross country, but to no avail. At 15 minutes after, Mr. Krucina calls class to order. Danielle Pietraszewski is anxious to check if she has mastered her homework and Geoff Ward, with his S.A.T. score of 1440, sits on the edge of his seat with every answer on the tip of his tongue. Many confused faces fill the room; homework is posted and conversation begins once again. Mr. Krucina changes his mind. He returns to his podium and again pencils are down on the papers. Rich Fortunak extends his hand and questions the method for solving this challenging calculus equation. Concentration is slowly being lost, and soccer and tennis are now the topics of discussion for many.

Computer Lit.

As the bell rings to signal the start of another day, Sean Sciortino rushes into class to avoid a tardy. Beth Choinacky watches Debbie Nowacki finish braiding Keri Griffin's hair, and Kristin Johnson and Jenny Brubaker go over their pom routine. Mrs. Taylor warns everybody to settle down and start on their programs, which Maria Ward, Alex Norris, and Robyn Freeman have already done. Stacey Lister and Shelley Fiwik take a break from their discussion to finish up their worksheet. While gossiping, Jenny Vergon and Meghan Stump work on their computer, as does Amanda Schultz. Towards the end of the hour, Jenni Smoker, Colleen Crawford, and Dawn Gillian stand around and talk amongst themselves. Kim Hilton plays "Tetris," while Susan Prusinski and Melissa Buckley try to answer the "difficult" questions on "Remote Control." A minute before the bell rings, everybody gathers at the door, ready to hurry out and end first hour.

Spanish I

Here is what a day in Spanish I usually consists of: First, Sra. Milligan makes a run for the border and brings all a hearty Taco Bell breakfast so that we have energy to get our Spanish brains tickin'! Then we recite the Hail Mary, in Spanish, of course! After we thoroughly learn our Espanol for the day, we spend the rest of the hour having a fiesta. To start, we break out the pinatas and go wild. You may think we learn nothing, but you are sadly mistaken. In our pinatas are various Spanish sentences ready for translation. Next we watch "El Norte," a movie about Spanish culture. After this, we move the desks up against the walls, turn on the Spanish rap tape "Rico Suave," switch on the strobe lights, and Lambda! This presents to us an even closer look at the Spanish culture, while giving us the chance to let out that lil' Spaniard that is hiding in all of us!

Spanish I is a very exciting and tension-relieving class. Sra. Milligan found that Spanish side in all of us and says if we keep up the good work and speak Spanish more fluently, she will pass out free tickets to see Menudo in concert!

*Nota: No es verdad.

Government

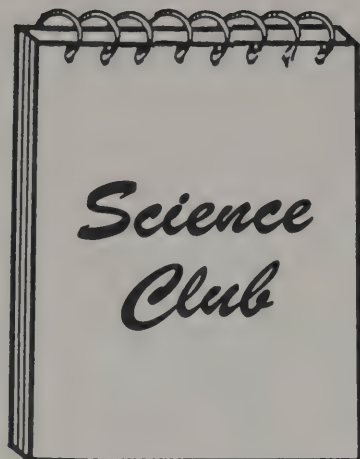

As the first hour bell rings, Julie Lawton strolls in, and Mr. Haas responds with "nice of you to join us today." Like clockwork, Mr. Haas starts a Hail Mary, and Brian Heflin asks for a pencil. After taking attendance, he asks, "Any questions? That is, if you know what chapter we're on!" As Mr. Haas begins to lecture, Kim Whittaker and Jane Wolfe try to be sly by talking behind a notebook. Consequently, they are interrupted by Mr. Haas telling them to be quiet. Because of the students' lack of attention, he decides to give a quiz, which, of course, was written by his wife, so he doesn't understand the questions either! The class finally ends with the bell and, "Go your way and sin less!"

"... If we don't re-cycle, we risk losing it all"
Mr. A

Under the leadership of President Brian Riley, Vice Presidents Dave Durham and Mary Dlugosz, and Advisor Ken Andrzejewski, the Science Club tried some new activities this year. While plans for a recycling project did not work out exactly as planned, several members have taken on the project of recycling paper. The remaining items — cans, glass, and plastic — will be on the agenda for next year.

Trips to St. Pat's Park and to Brookfield Zoo were enjoyed by the twenty-five club members who agree that it has been a fast-moving year.

Bottom: Responding to a Mr. A joke are Maria Ward and Michelle Bachtel. (Andy Katovsich didn't hear it.)

... Brightening The Hallways Of Marian High School

Once again, Marian's Art Club undertook one of its most appreciated activities, seasonally decorating the doors of the school. Members also undertook a new project this year and put their work on more public display on the windows of McDonald's Restaurant on McKinley Avenue.

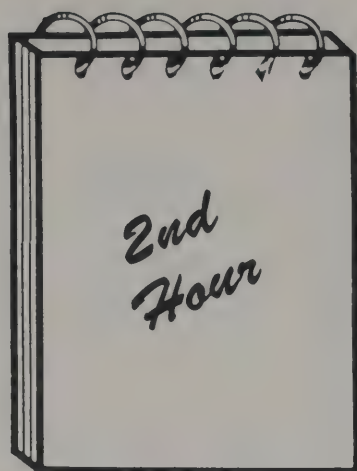

The field trip to Brookfield Zoo gave members an opportunity to sketch the animals. That trip and other activities which kept club members active, were coordinated in part by President Cynthia Linski, Vice President Andy White, Secretary Bill Cochrane, Treasurer Jill Allsop, and Special Projects Coordinator Melissa Lukaszewski.

Top: Amazed by some astonishing art work, Jenny Kloska and Cynthia Linski watch in awe.
Bottom: The real art work is on Jenny Riddle's skirt!

Morality

The 2nd hour bell rings and the students anticipate the morning announcements that soon begin. Following, Miss McKean takes attendance and the students listen to the Student Council representative, Paul Geifing, as he reads the "Morning Knight-Lines." Morality is now ready to begin. Miss McKean starts to lecture but is quickly interrupted by Pam Harris's and Theresa Smith's boisterous laughter. Class resumes and the topic is controversial, so Charlotte Renshaw has to raise her hand to quickly agree with the Church. Meanwhile, Ben Decio and Lisa Moriconi are arguing because Lisa won't tell Ben what they did in first hour. As Miss McKean finishes, many heads drop to desks and many begin to yawn. The class finally ends, and the students, looking very tired, walk out of the room.

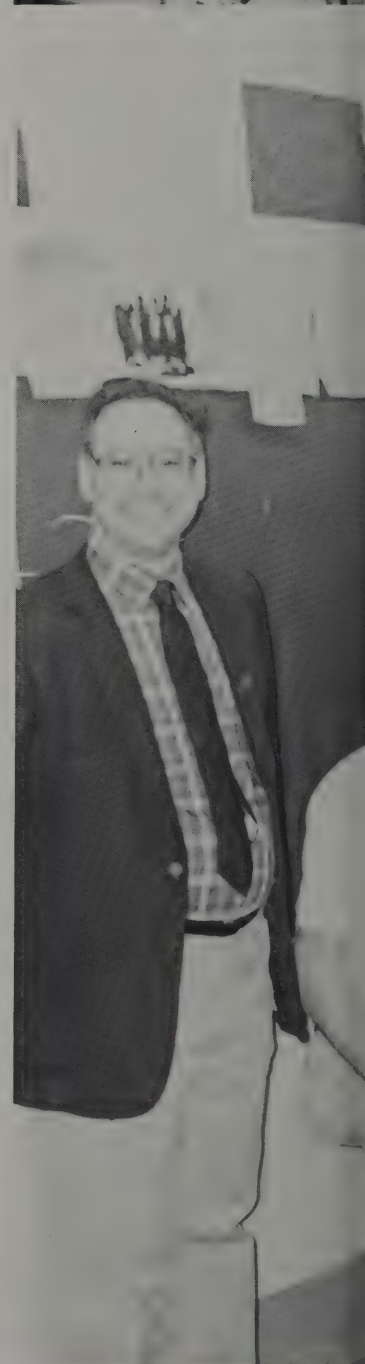

"You are the best of the best. I can still embarrass you, you know!"
— Fr. Paul

Intro. English I

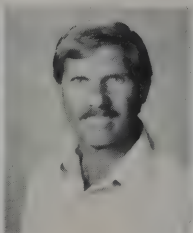

As the bell rings, a couple of freshmen run down the hall trying to make it into English. They don't make it, of course, because Mrs. Keller's watchful eye marks them tardy. The announcements begin, and, for some reason, this signals all students to talk. Following, Mrs. Keller begins to teach, but she suddenly remembers she forgot the attendance, just as the attendance person is at the door. At the same time, Mrs. Keller remembers it is Christmas Food Drive time, and her class is lacking. So, she gives a little speech about the less fortunate, hoping that the students will respond and bring in food or money. When class finally resumes, it is time to go over the English Workshop, and, of course, a few people forgot to do it. Scott Drost attempts to make a few good excuses as to why he didn't do it. Jenny Huemmer, of course, did hers, so she reads her answers. The bell ends the class, Mrs. Keller gives an assignment, and the class departs.

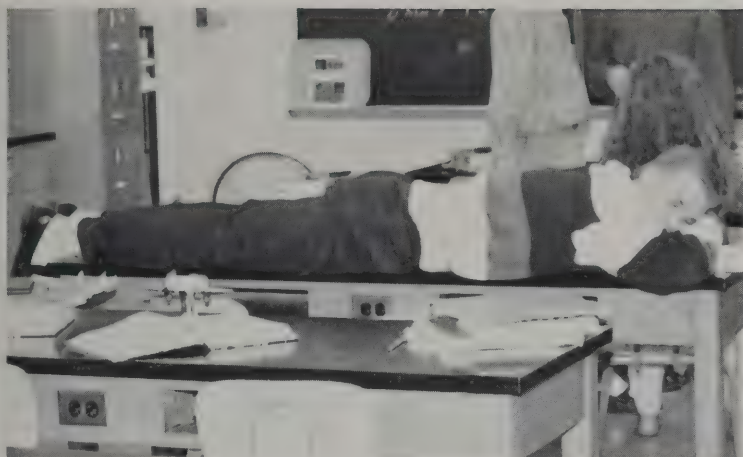

Intro. Geometry

The 2nd hour Intro. to Geometry starts off with Mr. Kryder telling the class to sit down and listen to the morning announcements. Following the announcements, Mr. Kryder becomes disappointed because no one completed the assignment given last night. Mr. Kryder especially yells at the guys because everyone knows that he favors the girls. At the same time, Chris Killilea and Josh Weaver sit in the back of the room making fun of Beth Choinacky. Meanwhile, Mr. Kryder talks to Kristie Hartman, and Laura Cichowicz talks about Riley people with Jason Roncz. Mr. Kryder makes a strange comment about geometry figures and Tracy Smith again starts complaining. The night's assignment is given and the class begins to talk, except Anna Lusk who does her homework because she doesn't want to fail another year of Geometry.

Advanced Physics

As the bell rings, Matt Dittoe and Tom Borger stroll in just in time to hear Father Daryl's morning announcements. As soon as these are finished, 15 minutes later, Alex Knopick struts in his Harvard Style walk, to the front of the class to read the "Morning Knight-Lines." As Alex drags the announcements on for an unbelievable amount of time, laughter stirs throughout the room, John Palmer makes an outrageous comment, and Marianne Hansen's shrill, loud laugh catches everyone's attention.

"This is Advanced Physics," yells out Father Smith as he stands up from his usual seat during the morning announcements in the back of the classroom. "You are the best of the best. I can embarrass you, you know!" All of the talking and laughter die down to quiet whispers and muffled giggles.

Everyone quiets down for a minute, and lets Fr. Smith begin class. After a while, all are back to their original conversations, and Maureen Dugan is passing a note to Bob Bickett which contains nothing of significance to anyone. Across the room, Dennis Ciancio is sound asleep while Alex Knopick, Stacey Skevington, and Danielle Pietraszewski discuss an equation which boggled even the mind of Einstein. In front of the room, Fr. Smith is carrying on a discussion with David Durham about the "pre-molecular phases and intraphases of the quark, antiquark, and positron."

It seems like days have passed before the bell finally rings, and everyone walks out with blank looks on their faces. "Do you have any idea what you're doing?" seems to be the common question in the discussion of the mentally-phased students.

Latin II

Second hour Latin II begins as the five students rush through the door hoping not to be late. After the announcements and prayer, the class is ready to begin. Dr. Levenson starts the class with a few Latin words and then asks the students to take out their last night's homework. As the class takes out their work, Rene Garza has to tell the class and Dr. Levenson a joke that only he and Todd Olson find to be funny. Dr. Levenson quickly takes attendance and when he turns around the class is once again talking and making fun of Alrea Price, the only girl in the class. Dr. Levenson tries to teach, but the class is strangely disruptive. In response, he gives the class a pop quiz and lets them talk until the bell rings.

"Friends don't let friends drive drunk."

SADD is an organization formed to prevent teenagers from drinking and driving. Students who join SADD must sign a "Contract for Life" promising to call their parents if they were drinking. SADD handed out keychains saying "Friends don't let friends drive drunk" when students turned in contracts and when they bought prom tickets. SADD also sponsored an overnight lock-in and an after hours party. Officers were Co-Presidents Alex Knopick and Chris Jenkins, Sec. Danielle Pietraszewski, Treas. Jim Schmiedeler, and the sponsor was Mrs. Dance.

"The Bowlers answered their way to the top!"

Captain A.

The Marian Quiz Bowl team enjoyed an outstanding season which saw few defeats. Led by seniors, Mary Rakowski, Brian Riley, and Geoff Ward, they ended the season with a 6-4 record. The seniors were strongly supported by juniors Charlotte Renshaw and Darren Krakowski.

Coached by Mr. Andrzejewski and Quizmastered by Dr. Rosenberger, the Knights saw a season of victory which should continue through the next couple of years since there is a great pool of talent in the upcoming classes.

Biology I

The bell rings for 3rd hour Biology I and the enthusiastic sophomores pile in the room. After all the students sit down, Mr. Kapiszka starts discussing upcoming events until he is interrupted by the conversation between Kristin Johnson and Sara Borger. Following, Mr. Kapiszka takes attendance while the class members talk amongst themselves. Mr. Kapiszka begins to write notes on the board until he is interrupted by Dan Olson's and Giovanna Cataldo's non-stop talking. In response, Mr. K goes into his normal lecture about respect. Mr. K lives by the philosophy, "You respect me, and I'll respect you." Then, to brighten up the mood, Ryan Graff makes a funny comment and the class is back to talking and taking notes. The class ends with a biology film, more notes, and then the bell.

"You respect me and I'll respect you."
— Mr. Kapiszka

Modern Geometry

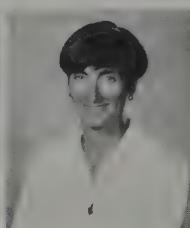

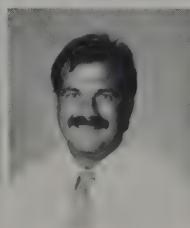

As the bell rings, John Lehner, and Meghan Stump are left standing at the pencil sharpener, tardy in Mrs. Jumper's eyes. Others try to finish last night's homework, but Veronica Hernandez and Kim Hilton talk quietly. Nicki Lower lets out a squeek as she hears something appalling from the gossip of Stacy Lister. Jason Finley and Jay Brendel trade answers as Mrs. Jumper turns out the lights for prayer. Then, she starts going over last night's homework. Kristin Lentz and Tammy Mays are full of questions, but neither is as inquisitive as Amy Young. As Mrs. Jumper tries to explain another one of her complex questions, a few people erase wrong answers. Jessica Lappin finishes her daily third hour snack while trying to comprehend what Mrs. Jumper is saying. After the bell rings, Mrs. Jumper hurriedly shouts out the day's homework as the students rush out.

Learning Strategies

This year Marian gained a new academic department, Learning Strategies. It is headed and run by our new football coach, Mr. Brian Burkhart. The program was designed to help students that are having academic problems. Students come on their own, or on a teacher's request, to help find and solve their problems. First, Mr. Burkhart gives the student a form to fill out so he can see if his/her problems are in notetaking, reading, composition, or organization. Then, Mr. Burkhart determines whether the student has hearing, eyesight, or learning disabilities. After pin-pointing the problem, Mr. Burkhart and the student work together until they come up with a solution. Additionally, Mr. Burkhart sends out a sheet to all the teachers to show them who is having problems, so all the teachers can be aware of them. Not only is the program helpful to the students, it also helps the parents to get involved with their child's academic career.

French IV

After second hour, the seniors in 3rd hour French IV get their books for class and walk "ensemble" (together) meeting the juniors at the door. The class is made up of five seniors, Kim Augustine, Maureen Dugan, Wendi Goldy, Tim O'Malley and Chris Zavisca, and two juniors, Jon Bankoff and Neal Eggeson.

Spanish IV

As the bell rings, Jill Allsop and Meg Bornheimer are once again sliding over the threshold to make it on time. Meanwhile, Sra. Vanderhayden is engaged in a fast-moving Spanish conversation with the new exchange student, Elisa, one which is completely lost on the rest of the class. Next, Jean DeWinter tells the class of her continued mistreatment in her previous class. In addition, Danielle Pietraszewski and Ron Garcia are once again arguing about something. And, of course, during all of this, Stacey Skevington is quietly listening to everyone. As everyone finishes their conversations, class begins, and all students try to understand Sra. Vanderheyden as she teaches the next lesson. However, the students usually find themselves completely and totally lost — but having fun! Bell.

When the bell rings, everyone takes his/her seat and starts saying "Mille Boume" in a whisper. Mrs. McKenna gives in and allows the class to play a French card game, but they have to keep their eye on Neal — he cheats! Although a "Creve!" will put him out of the game, everyone enjoys giving that card to Jon. When the game is over, Mrs. McKenna gives extra credit to the winner.

The class asks to play every day, but Mrs. McKenna doesn't usually give in. Instead the class reads French stories and histories, which Jon always wants to translate first, and they study poetry and grammar, the least favorite thing to do. The size of the class makes French enjoyable, and the students have a lot of fun.

¡Sí! ¿Cómo No?

The Spanish Club attended the "Fiesta Mexicana" in the fall. After winning a couple of piñatas, members went on to Taco Bell for chilitos and cinnamon crispas.

Other activities included attending Spanish masses at St. Stephen's parish, sponsoring an international Christmas party visiting Hacienda Restaurant and cooking out at the end of the year.

All of this kept officers Chris Bettcher, Jill Allsop, Meg Bornheimer, and Teresa Cataldo very busy — along with faculty advisor, Michelle Milligan.

C'est La Vie!

1990-1991 was a busy year for the French Club! During the year, club members ate two French dinners — one they prepared themselves and the other at L'Escargot in Chicago. The club also participated in the walk for Hospice, raising money to help the terminally ill. Finally, several members of the club saw the play Les Miserables at the auditorium theatre in Chicago.

The club was led by officers Julie Sanders, Charlotte Renshaw, Tricia White, and Brian Riley. As always, Mrs. McKenna acted as the club moderator.

Business Law

The 4th hour bell rings as Tom Borger reads the lunch menu. Jenny Schmanski and Stephanie T'Kindt rush in late. Mr. Calderone begins by having the class stand for prayer. Next, he assigns problems in the workbook, allowing the class to work in pairs. As the class begins to work, Christian Davey demonstrates assault and battery on Jen Parrish. Mr. Calderone sees the class become restless, and to change the subject he asks Nancy Lein what her 40 button stands for. She explains it while Tom, Christian, and Mr. Calderone start to talk about basketball. Kalonji Martin once again tries to convince them that UNLV is going to win the championship. As usual, Ryan Brandt, Vern, has managed to sleep through the entire class. Finally, the bell rings and everyone heads for the cafeteria.

Algebra II

The bell rings and 4th hour Algebra II begins when everyone yells "Mr. D!" Brian Carlson then takes attendance while the rest of the class talks. Finally, Mr. Dillon says, "All right, all right, get the books open and quiet down." Cindy Broering and Ali lemma keep talking until Mr. Dillon says, "3 minutes." So the class starts whispering. Then, Karen Bloom and Brian Carlson begin taking notes. At the same time, Paul Geifing sleeps, Alex Asterling tells weak jokes, at which only Corey Bossung laughs. Of course, Corey laughs at everything! Meanwhile, Chris Szajko and Mark Widman are talking about rock 'n roll and Cynthia Linski plays Nintendo Game Boy. Mr. D continues to teach class, but Rene Garza keeps talking about his Mexican campaign with Theresa Smith. Finally, Mr. D stops class to tell Tim Fries and Jason Barrett to stop playing their paper wad game. The class ends with Mr. D announcing the assignment and the class departs.

Peace and Justice

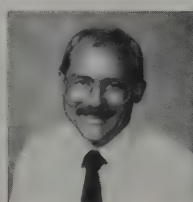

With just thirty seconds before the 4th hour bell rings, Eric Ganser dashes into the room with his customary roast beef sandwich. All take their seats and prepare for another 50 minutes of grueling Peace and Justice. Mrs. Dance tries to get the class' attention by saying a prayer. Following this, the eight-person class engages in conversation. Jenny Kloska and Jeni Van Huffel discuss the latest gossip, while Eric Ganser and Steve Christianson make small talk. Once Mrs. Dance gets the class' attention, the students begin taking the day's notes. This immediately puts Tom Buckley to sleep, or deep meditation, as he fondly calls it. The class remains relatively calm with the exception of Mike Crothers' occasional use of a curse word in the discussion that takes place at the end of the hour. As the bell rings, ending the class, the hungry students dash out the door in eager anticipation of the day's lunch.

Girls' Health

In their daily quest to quench their fiery and somewhat acrid breath, Katie Dittoe, JoAnne Romeo, and Ann Fewell nonchalantly appear at Mrs. Schulz's desk and ask for gum. As Mrs. Schulz gladly dishes out her gum, Sarah Wolf dances around in her usual bright and happy fashion, wondering about the upcoming events in the classroom. Next, Mrs. Schulz settles down her freshman girls and announces that their quiz will definitely take place during that period. Because Mary Fortunak and Becky Krug have been studying tentatively since class began, they smile unconcerned! While Mrs. Schulz is going over the day's lesson plan, Jill Daffinee, Ginger Schnell, and Lauren Zavisca gossip in the corner of the room. Finally, Mrs. Schulz quiets down the entire class by handing out the test. A long sigh sounds out across the room, and the freshman girls work on their tests until the class ends.

Western Civ.

"It's a really great class! It's a lot of fun!" says Tom Barry about 4th hour Western Civ. class. "There is never a dull moment," Giovanna Cataldo exclaims. The class consists of twenty lively sophomores. Mr. Rethlake keeps the class entertained with witty comments, historic soap operas, and open class discussion. He describes the class as "... very entertaining and academically stimulated." A normal class hour usually consists of detailed note-taking and discussions, followed by free time to converse with friends or relax. "The class is exciting yet relaxing in a funny way," Amy Thornburg explains. Jason Roncz especially likes the "Rethlake Factor." "It makes life a lot easier." (The Rethlake Factor is an adjusted grading scale, which most students take a liking to.)

"Der Deutschclub ist spitze!"
(The German club is fun!)

— Martin Förester

In its second year, German Club had an impressive membership of 40 people. Considering there are only two classes, that is very good. However, with a new German I class next year, enrollment is expected to rise even higher.

This year the club went on a picnic to Potawatami Park, took a trip to the Goethe Institute in Chicago, had dinner at a German restaurant, talked with German Americans, and visited the Mennohof Museum in Shipshewana to study Mennonite history and culture.

The German Club picnic was definitely a success!

“Without the help of the two club dictators, Matt Dittoe and Dennis Ciancio, Chicago trips would’ve been just a passing fancy”

— Dr. Levenson

The famed Latin Club once again sponsored two trips to Chicago. The first trip took a plethora of Latin connoisseurs to the highly recommended University of Chicago’s Museum of Ancient History. Then, the shiftless group again traveled to Chicago to hear the famous Odds Bodkin speak on Homer’s Iliad.

Participation by many students throughout the year made the club an interesting experience. Without the leadership of Dr. Levenson, who was assisted by the Latin Club dictators, it would have been just another year of meetings.

Faith And Eucumism

As the bell rings, Mr. Piechnik starts class with a prayer. Then he turns on the dreaded overhead, which signals another day of notes in Faith and Eucumism. The whole class sighs as their pens hit their notebooks, and some just fall asleep right then. Mr. Piechnik is interrupted by questions from Nick Dwyer and Chip Mitros. Meanwhile, Maggie Stephenson and Steph Connah gossip about the latest happenings, and others tentatively take notes. The class ends with Mr. Piechnik exclaiming: "Do you people live in a vacuum?" and everyone runs for the door.

Drawing I

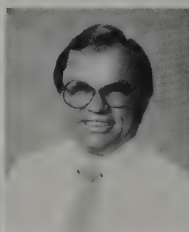

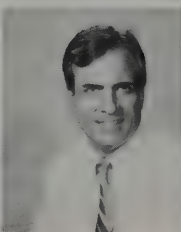

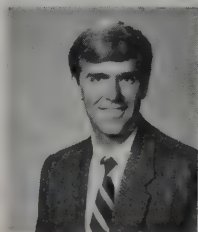

As the 5th hour bell rings, sounds of rustling papers, falling erasers, and pencils being sharpened fill the room. The sounds come to a halt as Mrs. Mathias moves to the front of the class to take attendance. Class comes to order as students silently listen to her explanations. Next, she announces the next Art Club meeting, and then lets the class get to work on their projects. However, Don Eichstadt and Brett Harris are in their own world, inattentive to the teacher's words. After boredom settles in, Jason Tricker and Shadya Yazback begin their conversations about school and gossip. Many students start to talk, but others work tentatively. Nicole Keeney works on her project enthusiastically along with Fed Bueno. Danielle Pietraszewski appreciates Mrs. Mathias' help, and rushes to get her things cleaned up before the bell. Everyone is in the hall before the bell rushing to get to the next class.

Pre-Calculus

The bell rings and everyone starts to do homework which is due during the hour. Mr. Largey goes over the answers so all check their work. Chris Bettcher asks a million questions about her work, while Kevin Mizani throws spitballs at Julie Lawton, making her very mad. Mr. Largey has to tell Jill Allsop and Tara Dahlkemper to stop talking. When Mr. Largey asks for the homework, Ben Decio, as usual, does not have it finished. Mr. Largey then begins the new assignment, and students doze off one at a time, until Mr. Largey wakes up Jeff Lefevere to answer questions. Meanwhile, Mike Keresztes and Jody Goralski try to work on homework due in another class. Mr. Largey then gives the class the homework and sets them free to work on it. Sean Duffin moves to the back of the room to talk to Ed Furry and gets yelled at for not being in his seat. The bell rings and the class departs rapidly.

Brit./Amer. Lit.

The bell rings and Mr. VanGoey's 5th hour British/American Literature class rolls in, ready to work. The students take their seats and Andy White tries to read what is assigned for the day, while Pat Davis, talks about all the other students in the classroom. Meanwhile, Mr. VanGoey, otherwise known as Trebor Yeognav, takes roll and tells the class the upcoming senior events. Andy Hobik realizes that he forgot his book again, and he tries to persuade Mr. VanGoey to let him go to his locker. Then, Mr. VanGoey begins to explain the story, but Marianne Hansen has to interrupt him with an, "I don't understand!" Mr. VanGoey then proceeds to tell the theme of the story, but is interrupted by Eric "Happiness Is" Makielski, who is stealing Trebor's highlighter and books. At the same time, Mr. VanGoey teases Dan Klipich, whom he calls "Klipboard", and Andy White beats up on Kelly Harper. During the rest of the hour, Kristi Koers takes notes and Mr. VanGoey strays off the topic. The class ends with Mr. VanGoey announcing the next dreaded "Blue Book" test and the class groans.

Chemistry

An exciting hour of Chemistry begins and April Thomas and Len Moretti walk in late, but, of course, because of the elevator. Homework is returned today, and, amazingly, Drew Zurek's homework was lost in the files. While Mr. Land discusses the problem with Drew, Jon Bankoff and Mike Kloska write their own proverbs with hidden messages on the board. Because he lost a bet with Mr. Land, B.J. DeCola has brought in gum for the whole class. Mr. Land starts to teach and Todd Dobosiewicz is amazingly quiet while Chris "Arizona" Mc Hugh tries to talk to anyone. During the lecture, Charlotte Renshaw interrupts Mr. Land to try to correct him, even when he is right. The class begins to talk, so Molly Carroll decides to walk out of class before Mr. Land can stop her. At the bell, the class runs for the door.

"... Striving to help and serve the community."

— Mr. Peichnik

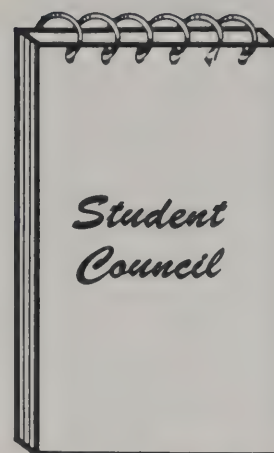

Members of the National Honor Society spend much of their time helping their fellow students and others in their community. As in other years, NHS members sponsored a much appreciated Christmas party for the nuns at the convent on the hill. They also helped at the X-90 exhibit at the Studebaker Museum sponsored the Valentine's Day Flower Sale. NHS members have done much to help the Marian community this year. The officers were President, Danielle Pietraszewski, Vice President, Mary Rakowski, Secretary, Meg Bornheimer, and Treasurer, Brian Bog-nar.

“ . . . Of The Students, By The Students
And For The Students . . . ”

The 1990-91 Student Council opened the year by sponsoring the "Back To School" dance, followed by the Homecoming flower sale. They also brought Homecoming floats back after a long absence. With Science Club, Student Council organized a recycling program for waste paper. The annual calendar sale and Christmas food drive were also Student Council projects. In November, five students attended St. Joe for a day to see how their Student Council works. President Todd Bundrant, V.P. Chris Jenkins, and Sec'y/Treas. Jean DeWinter also revised the Constitution, which was ratified at the end of the year.

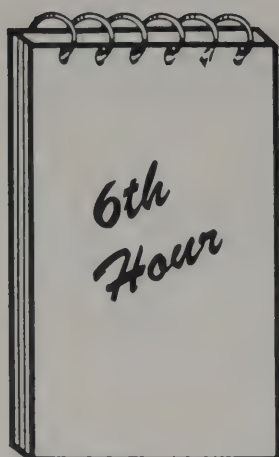

"This problem requires serious consideration," thinks Dan Olson.

Family Living

6th hour Family Living class starts out each day with a lot of talking while Mrs. Bognar takes attendance. Before class begins, Mrs. Bognar and the class talk about the latest gossip and coming events. Then, Mrs. Bognar starts the class by talking about their upcoming field trip to the furniture store. Following, Charlotte Renshaw takes Mrs. Bognar's attention by asking a question, which gives Mary Beth Fewell and Kristi Koers an opportunity to waste class time. Mrs. Bognar resumes the lecture, but is quickly interrupted by Mike Keresztes who is dancing around the room to throw something away. When Mrs. Bognar is finished, she lets the class work on assignments or talk.

Earth/Space Science

As the bell rings, fifteen people attempt to squeeze through the door for 6th hour Earth Space Science. As all take their seats, Mr. Andrzejewski, known as Captain A, begins class with a prayer. Halfway through the prayer, Mike McNeil starts to wander around the room while others lose interest and indulge in personal conversations among themselves. Having finished prayer, Mr. A quiets the class down and begins to explain the day's activities. After five minutes, Mr. A interrupts class to scream at Jody Goralski, Maggie Stephenson and Scott Drost for talking. Once again Mr. A resumes discussion, and is again rudely interrupted by Chris Kramer's disturbing laughter. Captain A quiets him down along with the rest of the class, while Tasha Herron and Angie Brown are dutifully taking notes. Chick Linski and Jon Anderson behave like rowdy freshmen. Finally, the bell signaling the end of class rings, and the classroom is left empty except for Mr. A.

Hebrew Scriptures

People pile into class as the bell rings, most having just eaten, and they are complaining about having only 5 minutes to get to class. Sister Felicity has the whole hour planned out, but our schedule is already disrupted by all the talking in the air. Sister asks everyone to raise their hands if they're listening, and the students jokingly respond. Class starts with a prayer, usually read out of the Bible by a student. A brief meditation period follows, during which students can reflect on the passage and talk to God. Sister breaks the silence with the sign of the cross and class begins. Our reading from the previous night is checked. Ryan Graf answers Sister with an occasional "Joe," which is a joke in the class. Debbie Nowacki and Amy Young answer questions in their own way. A short film follows, and some notes are taken from the board. Meanwhile, the class changes as talk about sports and other classes fills the air. Finally the bell rings and people are off to another class.

U.S. History

When the bell rings for 6th hour, all the juniors are in their seats ready to take notes in U.S. History class. Mrs. Martens, formerly Miss Grzeskowiak, starts a prayer, but is interrupted by Alex Asterlin's rude comments. Mrs. Martens begins to lecture but Steve Schwindaman, Joe Lovechio, Mark Sniadecki, and B.J. DeCola are still ripping each other apart for anything and everything. While Sharon Stuart and Rob Ellis sleep, Mrs. Martens yells at Ben Decio, but he still thinks he knows it all. Following, Mrs. Martens surprises the class with a pop quiz over the class notes. This especially catches Anna Lusk and Andrea Slabaugh off guard because they are basically confused about all the notes they took all hour. The class ends with a worksheet to fill out and the announcement of the next test.

English II

The bell has rung, and Jason Finley waits for Mrs. Switzer to calm the class before reading the prayer. After he finishes, Tim Wozniak and Jim Westbrook continue making fun of Cullen Becker, as Chris Killilea laughs along. Nicki Lower, Meghan Dwyer, Stacey Lister, and Heather Miller have their own gossip group, and as the talking gets louder, Mrs. Switzer decides it's time for an assignment. The room gets quiet as the students get to work, except for the whispers of Jenny Vergon and Tammy Mays as they "help" each other, and Ben Tiedeman's rapping. One by one the assignments are finished, and the discussions resume. Chad Slavinskis, being a good boy, doodles quietly, and Robyn Freeman and Alex Norris giggle at some jokes they've just shared. Suddenly the bell rings, and everybody jumps, then they realize they're free to go and they rush out of the room.

English III

The bell rings for 7th hour, David Diroll runs in late and the other students in English III prepare for another class taught by Mrs. Rathburn. Mrs. Rathburn says a prayer and then asks if students read the short story for that night. When the answer is no, Mrs. Rathburn gets upset. Andrea Grummell explains that she was working at Taco Bell and didn't have time to read, but Mrs. Rathburn does not accept that excuse or any other. And then, once again, Mark DeVlieghe and Dave Herron are talking so loudly Mrs. Rathburn has to stop lecturing to tell them to be quiet. During the rest of the class, Mrs. Rathburn lectures and Corey Bosung laughs at everything.

Total Physical Response: The Way To Learn A New Language

Psychology

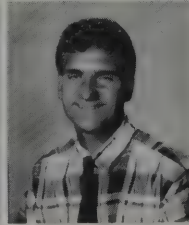

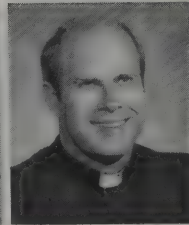

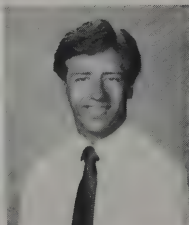

The bell rings and complaints about the cold fill the room. Julie Lawton, once again, complains about the classroom temperature of 20 degrees below zero. As roll is being called, Ben Decio hurries to get his homework done. At the same time, Brian Bogner and Jen Parrish are discussing last night's homework. The routine lecture begins, Fr. Daryl teaching the class the interesting concepts of psychology. Jill Turnock anxiously tries to estimate the percentage of priests who engage in sexual activity, while Cody St. Germain discusses with Jim McCray the importance of cowboy boots and jumping fences. At the same time, Paul Geifing tries to secretly pass notes to just about everyone in the room. The class comes to a close after many glances at the clock and students hustle out to attend their next class.

German I

At the beginning of every 7th hour, German I begins with Frau Cuniff politely asking how the weather is today. The reason for her asking is because German is taught through a technique called "total physical response," made up of story telling, making the regular busy work not necessary. The technique allows the student to learn by listening and role playing. Today Frau Cuniff asks if anyone has his/her own car. Mike Withall pulls out his keys and answers the question enthusiastically. Next, she asks if anyone has any brothers. Jenny Vergon says she has three, while Tina Addington remarks that she has two. The next phase is storytelling. Frau reads a story, and then students repeat it to their partners. After everyone has finished, Tom Strebinger recites the story, to which the class applauds. Then it comes: the infamous popquiz. It consists of drawing pictures of newly learned words. Then, to review for an upcoming test, German class plays Pictionary. The teams end in a tie, and the bell rings before the end of the game.

Choir

The bell signalling the beginning of 7th hour rings and in the hall runs Jill Switzer trying to make it into the band room, where choir takes place. Meanwhile, Pam Harris and Theresa Smith check their hair and talk about all the latest gossip. Mr. Liwosz starts the class by taking attendance and talking about upcoming events. On the other side of the room, Mindy Hubner and Kathy Arata sit quietly braiding each other's hair. During all of this, Mary Fortunak draws on the board while Theresa, Pam, and Jill practice the Star Spangled Banner for the next home basketball game. Mr. Liwosz starts the whole class singing but the voices tire, and everyone retreats to the chalkboard and mirror to discuss all the latest gossip.

Intro. Social Studies

Seventh hour Introduction to Social Studies starts off with a group of hyper freshmen trying to squeeze through the door before Mr. Tafelski marks them tardy. Mr. Tafelski leads the class in a short prayer, and then he takes attendance, noticing that just about every student is up walking around the room. Mr. Tafelski proceeds to question the reasons for walking around and Ted Heaton responds, "We all have to sharpen our pencils!" Mr. Tafelski calms down the class and tells them there will be a test in 3 days and the whole class begins to complain, except for Sean Sciortino who seems to be off in his own little world. Following, Mr. Tafelski begins to teach about Africa, a subject that most of the students couldn't care less about. The teacher stops for a minute to tell Ann Fewell and Andi Lentych to direct their conversation towards Africa, rather than the latest freshman gossip. Mr. Tafelski continues to lecture, despite interruptions and ends the class with five minutes until the bell.

"Ready. Set. Type!" — Mr. MacDonald

Industrial Trans.

For 8th hour Industrial Transportation class, the students wait at the door because Mr. Teegarden is late from his 7th hour Advanced P.E. class. Following him is a long line of students, waiting to get passes to their 8th hour classes. After "Mr. Tee" is finished, he proceeds to take attendance and get the class in order. The plans for the day are to check and change the oil in Cody St. Germain's car. Jim Batcho volunteers to check it while B.J. DeCola offers to change it. After Jim Renner and Mr. Tee discuss the procedure, Cody drives his car around, trying not to hit anything in the garage. Everything works out and the day is a success. So, the class leaves the garage to go back to the classroom to wait for the bell.

Church History

Our fearless leader, Mr. Sullivan, brings the class to order by reviewing the previous day's events. Many report on sporting events while others tell of social gatherings. The ability to relate current affairs with our mission in the Catholic Church is just one aspect of the exhilarating 8th hour Church History class.

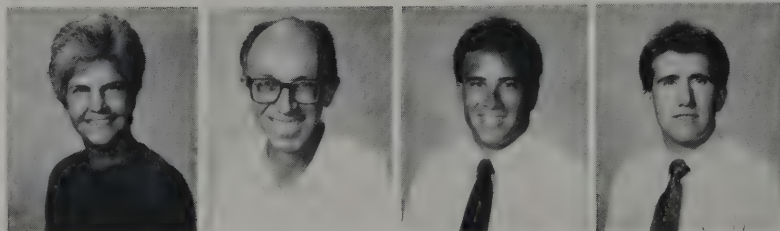

The class is based upon the evolution of a central aspect of our faith, the Church. Although many would consider this topic uninteresting, Mr. Sullivan is able to bring it to life. Moreover, class participation from "Power Dog" Doug VanPoppel, Jill Turnock and "Big Al" Alex Knopick gives new meaning to the term "lively". Dawn Kilanowski also makes the class interesting with her topics of discussion. Bill Cochrane's "know it all" attitude also brings life into the class. As a result, the combination of historical facts and current knowledge makes the class enjoyable for all those involved.

Typing

The 8th hour bell rings and most of the students stand waiting at the door for Mr. MacDonald. As the students file in the room, most of them are dreading the sound of typewriters that will fill their heads for the next 50 minutes. Mr. MacDonald leads the class in a prayer, and the students begin to put paper in their machines. Of course, Tim Fries again forgot paper so he must tap Jeff Taylor on the back to borrow a piece. Next, Mr. MacDonald has to tell Andi Lentych to stop laughing about something. Ann Fewell tries to discretely yell across the room. Mr. MacDonald writes all the day's activities on the board and the students quickly begin to type their first assignment. After this is finished, all the eyes in the room look at the board and dread the next ten minute timing. Mr. MacDonald starts his stopwatch and says "Ready. Set. Type!" and the class begins typing. With 5 minutes left in the class, students unplug their machines and wait for Father Daryl's exciting 15 minute announcements.

Yearbook

Eighth hour yearbook is a fun-filled, exciting class. Every day the students approach their work with enthusiasm and intensity. However, as they enter the door they are blasted by an "Enthusiasm" speech from Mrs. Kistner, which shocks them into reality. Class then begins with a few groovy announcements from the groovy cat himself, Matt Dittoe, which is followed by a few witty ideas by Mike Crothers just so Mrs. Kistner can shoot them down like lame ducks. While all of this is happening, Edward "the Great" Furry is diligently working on the sports section, and Kelly Harper is hard at work on her favorite academic section. Andrea Slabaugh and Tracy Wesolowski are whispering the latest gossip in the corner, while Anna Lusk, who is always so jovial, is usually sitting somewhere avoiding work. Then there is Jessica Lappin who likes to write notes and annoy Mike. When five of three rolls around, everyone is usually packing up and ready to go. As everyone exits the main entrance, you can tell they are not anxious to put in the extra time needed to get a yearbook completed.

Newspaper

Marian's monthly paper, The Lance, was active in the 1990-1991 school year, expressing the views of the student body. Supervised by Mrs. Rathburn and Mrs. Taylor, the five original members of the staff (Eric Ganser, Jeff Lefevere, Eric Makielski, Mike Stein and Brian Welsh) struggled at the start meeting deadlines and typing to put out a quality newspaper. Put out nine times a year, The Lance tried to branch out and do some different things than in years past. Trivia, crosswords, athletes of the month, and editorials are some of the new features this year. Also, with five male members on the staff, sports were given special attention, much to Mrs. Rathburn's dismay. At the semester, six classmates joined the staff (Steve Christianson, Chris Jenkins, Ben Tiedemann, Tim O'Malley, Chris Zavisca, and Jeni VanHuffel) to lessen the workload for everyone. From assigning articles to cutting and pasting, and many hours on the word processor in between, the staff tried to put out a good paper. Hopefully, the staff started a tradition of excellence that will continue for years to come.

Keri Griffin receives the Medal of Excellence in Girls' PE II.

The nineteenth annual awards night was on May 16, 1991. Each student received an award for individual achievement. Receiving special congratulations were Mary Rakowski, this year's Valedictorian; Danielle Pietraszewski, the Salutatorian; and the two Marian Scholars, Geoff Ward and Maureen Dugan. Rev. Daryl Rybicki presented the awards. Some of the awards included the Marian Honors Academic Certificate, as well as the medal of excellence and Certificate of Achievement in various subjects. Overall, it was a proud night for both parents and students.

"This is the first time I've ever won anything!" exclaims Sara Weinberg, winner of Excellence Award in Girls' PE I.

Varsity Football

Although the 1990-91 Knights experienced a second season of adversity, the pride, spirit, and respect of Marian's football program made a comeback with the help of Coach Brian Burkart.

Kicking off the season was the Mishawaka Jamboree where the Knights played Warsaw and Elkhart Memorial. Though they were defeated by Warsaw, they bounced back and attacked Memorial in the opening minutes of the next quarter. Due to the weather, the game was called before the Knights could score.

A highlight of the season was when the Knights scored their first touchdown in ten games against Gary Wallace. In the end they were defeated, but the spirit was back! Led by captains Erich Dieter, Matt Dittoe, and Brian Kinzie, they played hard-fought games against Culver Military Academy, Bishop Luers, Northwood, St. Joe, and North Judson.

Though the Knights went 0-8, they gained much respect throughout the area. They gained four times as many yards and nine times as many points as the year before. Because of a young team, new coach, and renewed spirit much is expected from the future Knights. The award winners were Brian Kinzie — Most Valuable Player, Chris Jenkins — Mental Attitude, and Sean Szuba — Most Improved.

Super stud, Dave Diroll amazes the crowd with his tortoise like speed.

Boys' Cross Country

The boys' team started off slowly but picked up their pace. They finished with a 5-11 record and were paced by seniors John Palmer and Rich Fortunak. John Palmer, the captain, consistently placed first and second throughout the year.

John Palmer was named the Most Valuable runner, and Rich Fortunak was named the Most Improved runner. The Mental Attitude Award was given to Neil Fiwek, a runner who underwent knee surgery at the beginning of the season yet stuck with the team throughout the year.

Senior captain Jean DeWinter, who was a third year letter winner, was named the Most Valuable Runner. The Most Improved Runner was April Thomas, and the Mental Attitude award winner was Mary Fortunak.

Boys' Tennis

The 1990-91 tennis team posted an outstanding record of 16-4 despite facing adversity towards the end of the season. Under the leadership of captain Ron Garcia, the squad reached the sectional finals for the second time in the past three years. Although senior leadership played an important role throughout the season, the driving force behind the Knights was first year coach Lesiba Mmesi.

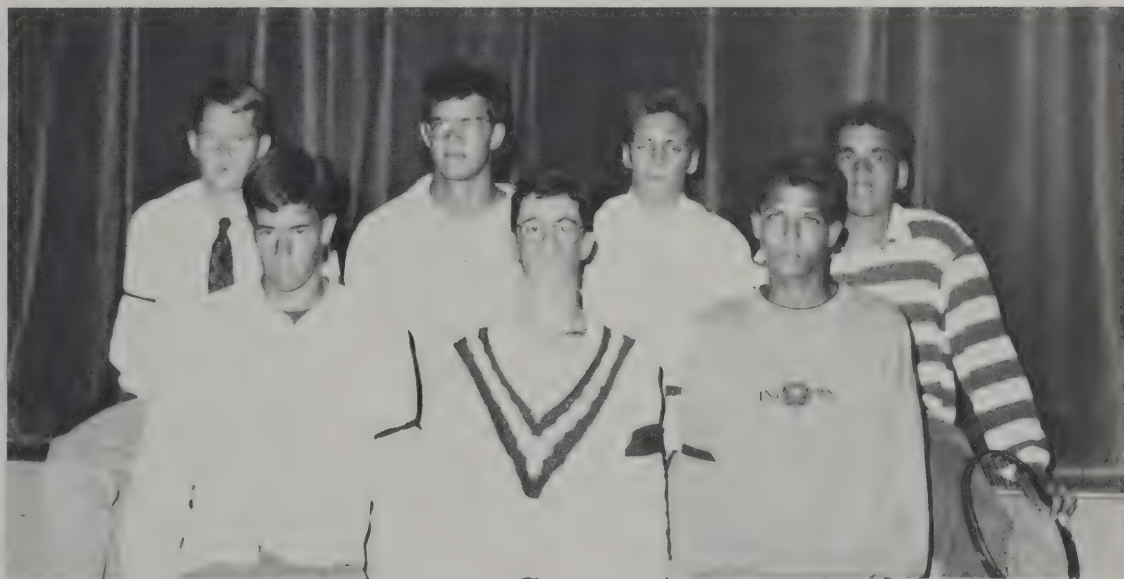

Returning lettermen Jon Bankoff, Todd Bundrant, Ben Decio, and Steve Schwindaman were joined by newcomers Kalonji Martin and Chris Zavisca to win 16 matches. Individually, Chris Zavisca won the Concord Invitational, while doubles partners, Ron Garcia and Todd Bundrant, were named first team All-State and Clay Invitational champions.

During the tournament, the team learned that Coach Mmesi's parents were killed in the turmoil surrounding his native country, South Africa. The coach was unable to see the team through sectionals; the ordeal, however, enabled the team to place sports in their proper perspective.

Ron Garcia was named Most Valuable, Chris Zavisca was named the Most Improved, and Todd Bundrant and Steve Schwindaman shared the Mental Attitude Award.

"I should have tried Quiz Bowl instead," exclaims Steve Schwindaman.

The Girls' soccer team finished their season with a 5-7 record under first year coach, Vince Ganzburg. Co-captains Jill Turnock and Julie Lawton, along with the other seniors, showed outstanding leadership capabilities throughout the season.

Although they were somewhat young, the Knights were competitive with all the area teams. Also, Cynthia Linski was named to the first team All-NISL Soccer Team.

With the great support of the Marian community, first year coach Sally Kindig led the Knights through a hard fought season. Although victories were limited, they made great strides throughout the season. Along with co-captains, Meg Bornheimer and Danielle Pietraszewski, the seniors led the team to a 5-17 record. Meg Bornheimer was named the Most Valuable Player and also co-winner of the Mental Attitude Award. The leadership of co-captains Jody Goralski, Andy Hobik, and five other seniors was an integral part of the Knights' winning season.

Both Jody Goralski and Andy Hobik were named to the South Bend All-Metro team and played in the Sunburst All-Star Classic. Both Jody Goralski and Andy Hobik were named the co-MVPs, Drew Zurich was the Most Improved, and Alex Knopick won the Mental Attitude Award.

The girls' basketball team had their best season in many years. Records broken include; (1) most wins in one season; (2) most points scored in one season; (3) most points scored in one game; and (4) most consecutive season wins.

Under the direction of Coach Buysse and the tri-captains, Jill Allsop, Tara Dahlkemper, and Melissa Lukaszewski, their season ended with a 9-10 record. Junior Colleen Andrews' record-breaking statistics also helped push the Knights through a great season.

Ice Hockey

The 1990-91 hockey team, led by Coach Bill Hambling and Asst. Coach Bob Kranda, displayed skill and sportsmanship with each trip to the ice against teams from in and out of state. The offense was led by All-Stars Ben Decio and Brian Carlson, while senior co-captains Brian Bognar and Christian Davey, along with strong underclassmen, solidified the defense. Eagerness to cooperate and hustle was shown in their plays, and the team's determination and pride certainly affected the positive side of Marian athletics. The young team looks forward to next year with optimism and a strong desire to win.

Wrestling

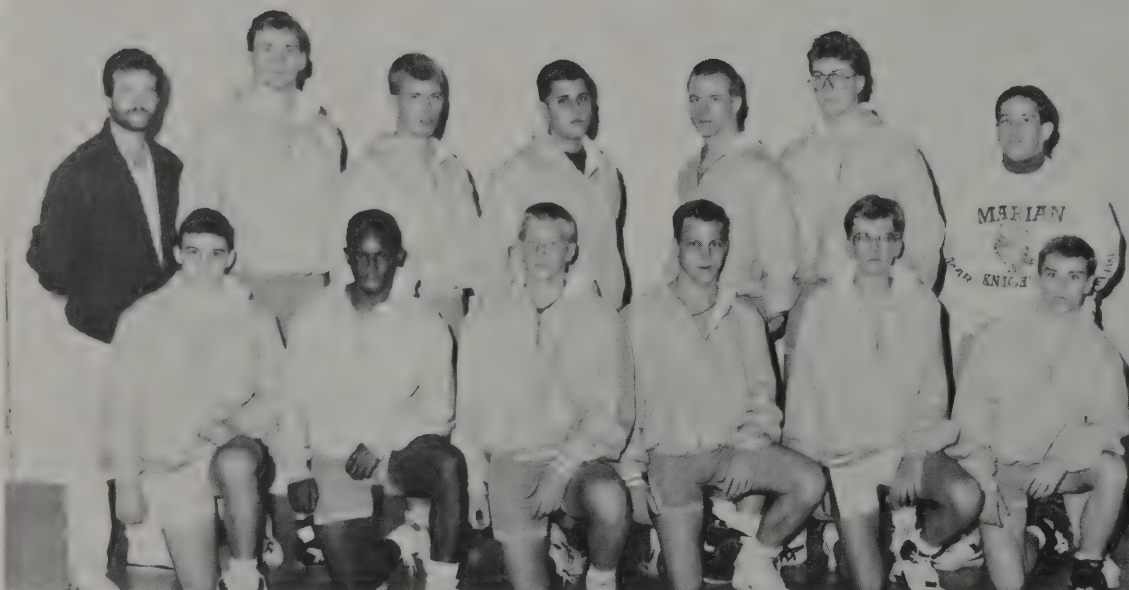

The 1990-91 Marian wrestling team showed a vast progression over last year with individual and team performances matching or improving previous years. With an overall record of 2-18, the team had to rely on individual records as a source of achievement.

Three of Marian's grapplers, Jeff Szuba, Ron Veldman, and Mark Widman, displayed outstanding performances throughout the year. Jeff Szuba's mental attitude throughout the season was a source of inspiration for the team. Ron Veldman's 12-13 record showed vast improvement and helped to keep the spirit alive.

The outstanding performance of team captain Mark Widman culminated with his sectional victory, and his Regional, Semi State, and State placings once again brought back the pride to Knights' wrestling. The Knights were led by Coach Tom Dolly and assisted by former Marian grappler Jim Walters. The future of Marian wrestling is once again looking bright.

Mark Widman earned MVP and Mental Attitude Honors while Ron Veldman was named the Most Improved wrestler.

Cheerleaders

The 1990 football and basketball cheerleaders began their season in June at Indiana University camp, where they received a spirit stick and several ribbons. At the end of the season, sponsors Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Bognar, chose Jen Parrish as MVP, Pam Harris Most Improved Player and Kelly Harper as Mental Attitude.

Basketball season started with two new sponsors, Mrs. Sniadecki and Mrs. Diroll, who helped bring spirit to the stands. Also joining the varsity squad were 3 senior lifters, Matt Dittoe, Brian Kinzie, and Eric Byrnes. Although the sectional loss was disappointing, the cheerleaders felt they had more spirit and fan support than any other team. Kim Augustine was named MVP, Keri Griffin, Most Improved, and Alisa Bobay received the Mental Attitude Award.

Good sportsmanship and positive attitudes played a big part in the winning record of the girls' track team this year. Coming back from a disappointing first round loss, the team went on to a 5-4-1 season. Playing a big part in their success were seniors Jill Allsop, Meg Bornheimer, Jean DeWinter and Mary Rakowski, the last of whom won the Mental Attitude award for the year. The sixteen other students who participated will be challenged to live up to this year's record next spring.

Chosen Most Valuable runner was Colleen Andrews, and Most Improved was Meghan Dwyer. Coach Missy Albert is justifiably proud of the endurance and tough-mindedness of this year's team.

Boys Track

... a small but united group

"We always cheered each other on. We did our best to beat our own personal records and to live up to the hopes and expectations of our teammates," says co-captain John Palmer.

Unity was an important element in the team's success this year. This was most evident in the 32 point score at the Sectionals, and the fact that three players, Brian Nix, Richard Fortunak, and John Palmer went on to the Regionals.

Brian Nix was chosen Most Valuable, and John Palmer received the Mental Attitude award. Ryan Parrish, the Most Improved member, is looking forward to a new season and the support and encouragement of his teammates, even though the loss of six seniors will be deeply felt.

Boys' Soccer

The 1991 Boys' Soccer team suffered a bumpy season. The team included many strong players, but lacked depth. Even though they ended up at .500, the team knew that they could have done better. The season still had its glory as the Knights conquered their own Invitational after a two year dry spell. Chris Jenkins was awarded the Defensive MVP and Matt Dittoe was the Offensive MVP. A few other standouts for the season were first team All-Conference player Kevin Mizani and two Honorable Mention All-Conference players, Ed Furry and Chris Jenkins. With the loss of many seniors and Coach Roelke, next year's team is going to have a tough time. Good luck next season.

Softball

The 1991 season for softball had its ups and downs. The team lost their first game to Clay, but after long hours of grueling practice in freezing temps, they came back to defeat Clay in their own tourney. They also beat rivals St. Joe and Washington. Win or lose, all their games were played with vigor and pride. The girls went into sectional play with high hopes and determination, but lost to a tough Penn team. Strong pitching from Beth Choinacky and Debbie Nowacki plus an experienced infield, helped the Knights to their victories. The sophomore-dominated team got in a lot of playing time, which is sure to be a key factor in an invincible team next year. MVP, Danielle Pietraszewski; Most Improved, Beth Choinacky, Mental Attitude, Karen Bloom.

Sophomore Jeff Kloska had the lowest 9 hole round with a par 35, and senior Tom Borger had the lowest 18 hole round of a 76 (4 over par). It was a very successful year for the golf team, and with a few good breaks it could have been even better.

The great pitching of senior John Huemmer couldn't make up for disappointing performances which resulted in a 7-17-1 record. The "raw talent" of this team didn't achieve the successes of which it was capable.

Huemmer turned in a no-hitter against John Glenn and allowed only one hit against Concord. Without John's talents and efforts the record would undoubtedly have been much worse. He was the Most Valuable Player while Steve Christianson received the Mental Attitude award and Joe Lovechio was voted Most Improved. With seven seniors leaving, the remaining team members will have to work hard to develop that "raw talent."

Unlike most other high schools, the Marian Varsity Pom Pons consists almost entirely of underclassmen. They are led by sophomore co-captains Kristin Lentz and Kristin Johnson.

Along with a new season came a new sponsor, Miss Nancy Moffet, who was a Pom Pon at New Prairie High School.

They spent hours after school painting signs to decorate the halls and gym for pep rallies and games. The members also donated cookies, candy, and other treats to put in "goody bags" for the sports teams before games. ... to the final round of Sectionals —

Although it was disappointing to be defeated by a strong St. Joe team in the final round of the Sectionals, the girls could be justifiably proud of their 8-8 season, a third place at the Concord Tourney, and of their co-captain Cynthia Linski's personal record, which included a #2 singles championship at Concord.

It was a year of downs and ups, beginning with a couple of losses to Concord and Penn. Some line-up changes by first year coach Mrs. Caroline Schulz may have helped to turn things around. Jill Turnock, who had been playing doubles with Mary Beth Fewell, was switched to playing singles, while Julie Lawton became Mary Beth's new doubles partner. A couple of wins over Clay and Elkhart Memorial followed. The regular season ended with a win over Riley and a balanced record.

All three team awards went to seniors this year. Cynthia Linski won the Most Valuable award for the third straight year, while Mary Beth Fewell picked up Most Improved and Wendi Goldy was judged to have the best Mental Attitude.

It is going to be tough to get the team going next year with the loss of eight seniors, almost half of the team. Remaining team members will, no doubt, work extra hard to make up for the loss and to try to live up to the example set by this year's team.

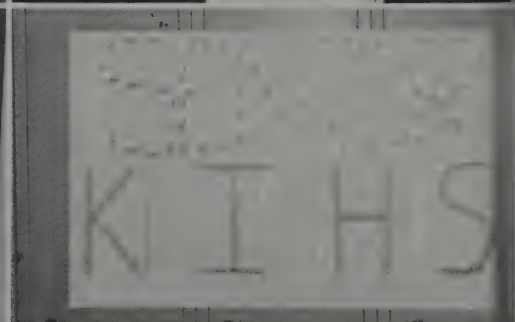

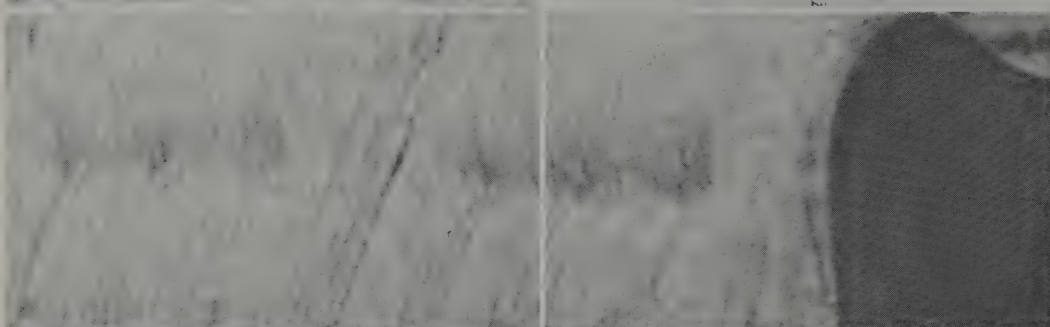

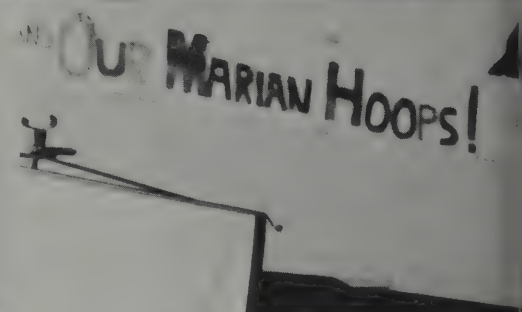

Cynthia Linski gets ready for a power serve!

"The Mousetrap"

Special

The Mousetrap

Someone in the guest house is the murderer! It could be any one of the guests. It seems that nearly everyone has a motive and an opportunity, and because they are stranded by a snowstorm, the tension mounts as each character is viewed with suspicion. The truth isn't revealed until the last few moments of The Mousetrap.

This thriller was well received by Marian audiences on November 2, 3, and 4. The helpful crew was led by Todd Bundrant, Brian Riley, and Mary "Mo" Dlugosz. Under the direction of Mr. Robert VanGoey and Jen Parish, the cast and crew kept the audience guessing until the last breath-taking moment.

Lisa Moriconi — Mollie Ralston
 Brian Bogнар — Giles Ralston
 Jon Young — Christopher Wren
 Julie Lawton — Mrs. Boyle
 Alex Knopick — Major Metcalf
 Mary Good — Miss Casewell
 Mike Keresztes — Mr. Parakini
 Ben Decio — Detective Sergeant Trotter

Making a fashion statement, Jon Young displays his tie for the beautifully dressed Lisa Moriconi.

Not being able to control himself any longer, Brian Bogнар kisses Lisa Moriconi during the play.

Mr. Parakini (Mike Keresztes) gets questioned about the murder by Detective Sgt. Trotter (Ben Decio).

Julie Lawton consults Mary Good about the latest fashions.

Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat

Jacob had always favored Joseph so much that he gave Joseph a beautiful coat. All his brothers envied him for this so they faked his death and sold him to slavery. When Joseph later becomes King, he forgives his brothers for all they have done to him. This was the story of this year's spring musical Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat. Under the direction of Mr. Robert VanGoey and Mrs. Cherie Smith the musical was phenomenal!

Narrators — Jill Switzer, Kim Augustine, Theresa Smith, Pam Harris

Mrs. Potiphar — Julie Lawton

The upper-classmen defeat the lower classmen once again in tug-of-war.

This year the winter and spring carnivals were well attended and fun. Ironically, the winter carnival, originally scheduled for Feb. 15th, had to be re-scheduled for March 8th due to snow! Unfortunately, March 8th was a almost spring-like day, so games like basketball, volleyball, and ping-pong were substituted for snow activities. The spring carnival, on May 17, included outdoor events such as the dunk tank, the balloon toss, and the tug-of-war. Pizza and free ice cream and snacks kept everyone satisfied until 3:00.

Are you paying attention, Chris Szajko, Mike Parent, and Marybeth Fewell?

Below: Nick Dwyer helps to bring up the offering.

At the heart of the Catholic school is the element of faith — not only as something to be learned, but also as something to be lived and experienced. During the school year, Marian students have the opportunity to do both — to not only learn the elements of their faith, but also to put them into practice. At the center of all this is our public prayer as a school community. This would include not only our daily morning prayer but also those occasions when the entire school community or smaller segments of it gather for common prayer.

All-school liturgies, provide students with many opportunities to become involved in the public prayer life of the Church. Students and staff members serve as lectors, eucharistic ministers, music ministers, and servers. Class masses, team Masses, prayer services and other special gatherings help keep the spirit of prayer alive in the hearts of the Marian family.

Strengthened by these occasions the members of the Marian family are better able to practice what they have learned.

Tennis Ball

Clearly one of the highlights of the year was the Marian Tennis Ball. On January 20, at the Erskine Manor Clubhouse, students from each class gathered in their best attire for the annual dance. It was sponsored by Mrs. Shultz and the girls' tennis team. Drinks and snacks were provided for the students along with a photographer for pictures of each couple. The clubhouse was decorated with green, purple, white, and pink pastel balloons and colors. The music was provided by Bandwagon DJ. By the end of the night everyone truly had a ball.

This year's Prom was definitely a night to remember. The students arrived at the Marriott at 7:00 for dinner. Everyone looked wonderful in formal dresses and tuxes. The music was provided by the band, "This End Up." The colors were rainbow with a bouquet of balloons on each table. Each person received a champagne glass with the Prom's theme "For Just a Moment" inscribed on it. The fun ended at 11:00 when the dance was over.

Retreats

Far Left; Involved in a serious conversation, Kristi Koers uses sign language to communicate with Christian Davey.

"I felt so close to my classmates after our class retreat! I got to know some people in a way I never did before," said Junior Tracy Wesolowski after her overnight experience.

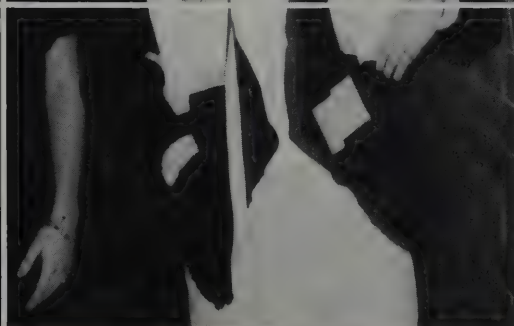

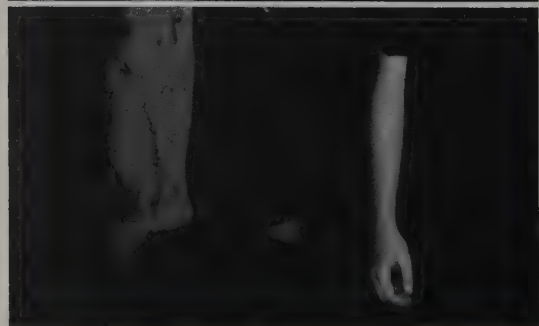

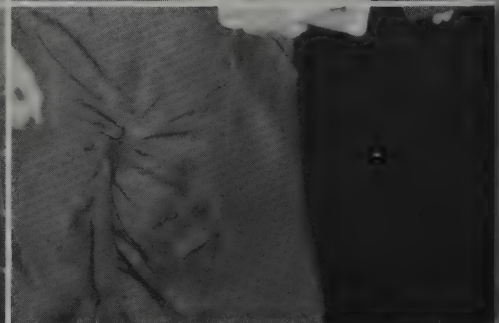

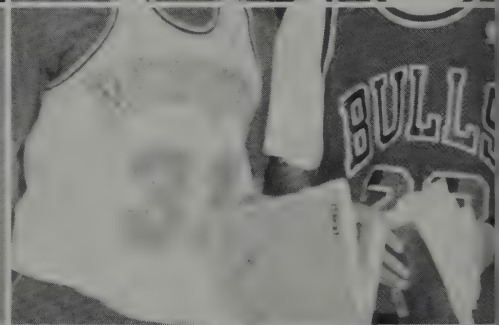

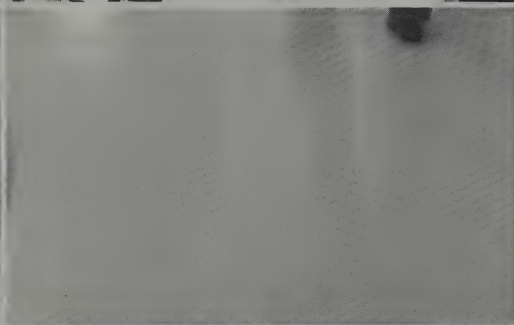

That comment seems to reflect a fairly common feeling of students after each year's retreat program. The four year program builds from freshman to senior year and helps students to get to know themselves and each other better.

For freshmen and sophomores the retreat is just a one-day off-campus event with emphasis on community-building, respect for each other, and trust in others.

Junior and senior retreats are overnight and a bit more intense. Students are encouraged to get rid of "masks" and to be themselves. Examination of past successes and mistakes helps seniors to review their four year experiences and to use them for growth.

The retreats are always very enjoyable and fulfilled and few students want to miss them.

Class Of '94

Freshmen

From day one, this year's freshman class set out to prove they weren't just our freshman class! Spirit and pride were evident in their participation in such all-school events as the calendar sale, where Chip Mitros was the number one salesman in the entire school and where the class came in second only to the seniors in overall sales. Freshmen sponsored a very successful Hoop dance for the first home basketball game, and grew closer to each other in their first high school retreat. Freshman athletic teams had winning records in football, basketball, and volleyball. By the time these "little kids" become seniors they could be a powerhouse for all to envy.

What did you find most challenging in your freshman year?

"... being in activities and dealing with school at the same time." Lauren Zavisca

"... early morning hockey practices. Getting up at 4:30 a.m. is just not me" John Dugan

"... reading Romeo and Juliet, playing Penn's football team, and facing Jerome Calderone after losing a game." Chick Linski

Class Of '93 Sophomores

The 1990-91 school year was a memorable one for the sophomores. They started it by sponsoring the Homecoming dance, and ended it with a trip to Cedar Point. At the retreat, many feelings were brought into the open during a very emotional fishbowl, resulting in new friendships and a deeper unity.

The sophomores are an athletic class, boasting the quarterback of the football team, a starter for varsity basketball, most of the pom squad, and participants in various other sports. The class of '93 started their summer vacations with more maturity, closer friendships, and for most, a driver's license. They look forward enthusiastically to being upperclassmen next year.

Juniors

This year the Junior class displayed more spirit than they have in any previous years at Marian. Their participation in the annual magazine sale was tremendous, raising more than enough money for the 1991 Prom. The halls were completely filled with banners and posters for Spirit Week. All the Junior retreats were also completely successful. The class that was once known for its distance and division has finally united through its spirit and cooperation.

Seniors

Class Of 1991

The class of 1991 experienced three memorable years before finally reaching the pinnacle! Gathering in the fall of 1987, they knew few people, but by the end of three years, the friendships were everlasting. Senior year started with genuine anticipation and the class took their academics seriously.

Along with strong academics came great class and school pride and seniors showed this by reaching 100% participation in the annual calendar sale.

Being a Knight meant something special to all seniors. Whether it meant strong academics, expertise in athletics, or meaningful relationships, Marian High School made memories that would never be forgotten. The impact this year's seniors made on Marian will also be recognized for years to come.

Remember When . . .

— Lydia Daniel was actually quiet?

— Kim Whittaker and Chris Jenkins went out?

— Kim Whittaker and Chris Zavisca went out?

— Jane Wolfe was a cheerleader?

— Frosh rocked the mic?

— Alex Knopick and Jill Turnock spent so much time in the bathroom?

— Eric Makielski was short and quiet?

— Brian Harding was here?

— Todd Bundrant tried out for freshman basketball?

— Brian Kinzie fought Shannon Reynolds?

— Jim Batcho killed a mouse with his algebra book?

— everybody thought Kristi Koers was a narc?

— Matt Dittoe shaved his head?

Kalonji Martin looks lost as a freshman.

The Penny Pitch!

Kelly Harper with BIG Eric Makielski in typing class.

This is the Eric Byrnes we all know and adore?

Mike Stein in his younger years as a Knight.

Mr. Van Goey (Trebor Yeog Nav) and frosh. English.

Slight changes in Chris Jenkins and Kevin Mizani?

Leafing through a yearbook, Kelly Harper tries her hardest to avoid any work.

Relaxing in newspaper, Eric Ganser displays the current issue of the Lance.

Mike Stein is once again mesmerised by science.

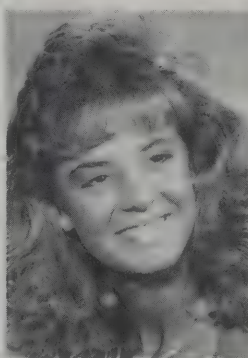

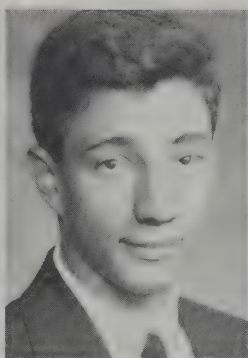

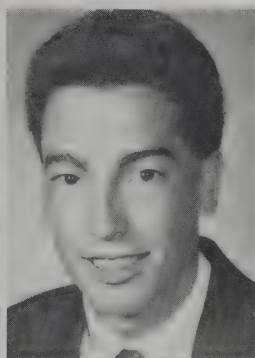

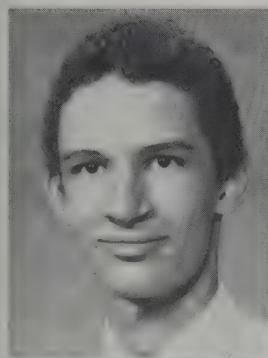

Lost in the past, Bridget Haney brings back the spirit of the 50's.

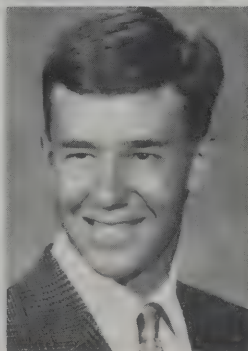

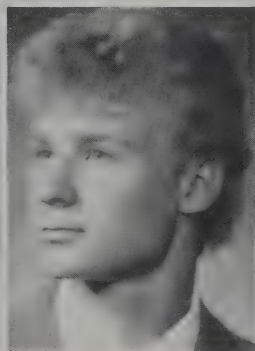

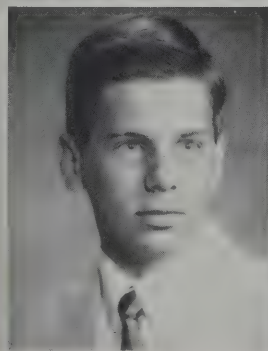

Our favorite Kraut, other than Adolf, Martin Forster pulls up his pants.

Center: Christian Davey and Kalonji "Papa K" Martin dog the underclassmen in ping-pong.

Tediously working, as usual Nicole Keeney attempts to look professional while "hunting and pecking."

Graduation

"... We've earned a chance to celebrate ..."

"We come together as strangers; we leave as eternal friends."

Salutatorian Danielle Pietraszewski

"Do not allow yourselves to become isolated from each other. Take great joy in the wonderful friendships you formed these past four years."

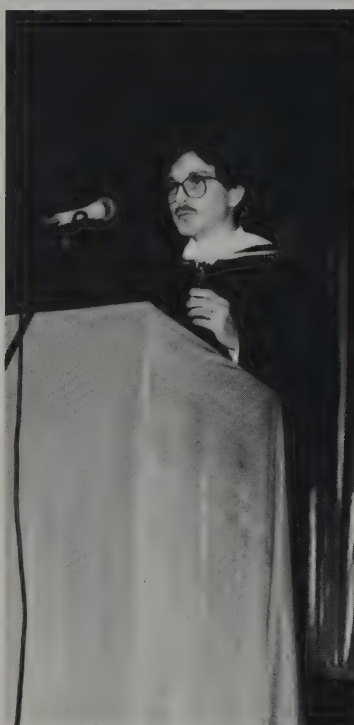

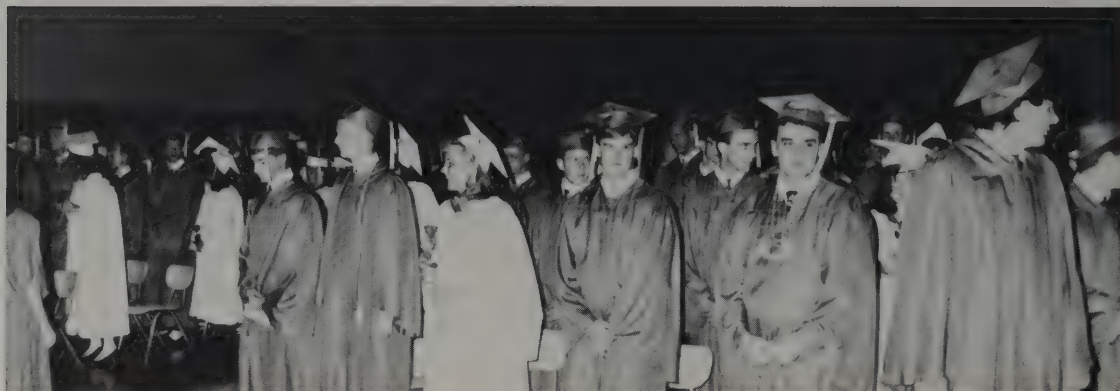

Commencement speaker,
Robert Ercoline

"We have two options: either mind our own business and let someone else deal with the problems, or attack the future as producers of change."

Valedictorian Mary Rakowski

"The truth is that together we can tear down walls; and together we can change unjust laws; and together we can bring about an end to war and a beginning to real peace."

Commencement speaker
Robert Ercoline

Graduates prepare to step out into the "real world" after commencement ceremonies.

"Theology guru" and former Marian teacher, Robert Ercoline, addresses the graduates.

Salutatorian Danielle Pietraszewski

Nostalgic Mike Keresztes poses with Meg Bornheimer and Laura Woodka.

Top right: Celebrating in their own quiet, understated style are Jeff and Jim (or is it Jim and Jeff?) Lefevere.

No question about his happiness! Eric Collins grins a big one.
